Item 4 – Advisory Business

Summary

American Century Investments Private Client Group, Inc. (American Century Investments) was organized in 2017 to offer discretionary investment management to individuals, trusts, estates, charitable organizations, and business entities. In 2020 American Century Investments Private Client Group began offering the Planner Service described here (the "Service").

The Service is a non-discretionary investment advisory service that provides single, point-in-time advice. The resulting recommendation ("Investment Plan") from this Service will be for an asset allocation of investments and corresponding, specific American Century Investments mutual funds that can create this investment asset allocation ("Investment Planner Service"). The Investment Planner Service is limited to that asset allocation of investments and corresponding American Century mutual funds. The Investment Planner Service does not consider or advise on any non-American Century mutual fund.

The Service can also be used separately to compare investment options within certain retirement plans to American Century mutual funds held in individual retirement accounts ("Rollover Planner Service"). The resulting recommendation from the Rollover Planner Service ("Rollover Plan") is limited to comparing the client's current plan investment options, fees and services to potential American Century mutual funds held within an individual retirement account ("IRA") held with the American Century mutual funds' transfer agent.

The Service is a single, point-in-time service. The Investment Plan, Rollover Plan and corresponding agreement expire thirty (30) calendar days after the client completes the Investment Planner or Rollover Planner questionnaire either online or with a representative. Therefore, neither the Investment Plan nor the Rollover Plan account for any subsequent changes to the client's financial planning, investment goals, comfort with risk, time horizon, financial circumstances, the client's market views or outlook, changes to the client's retirement plan services, fees or investment performance. The Service is a non-discretionary service, and, therefore, clients are under no obligation to accept any of the asset allocation or rollover advice or fund recommendations provided by American Century Investments Private Client Group through the Service and American Century Investments is not authorized to implement these recommendations without client consent.

An American Century Investments representative will review the Investment Plan and/or Rollover Plan, including the underlying fund recommendations, with the client and is available to help with implementing the plan. Clients can implement part or all the plan on their own with American Century funds directly or through accounts held with brokers, dealers or advisors not affiliated with American Century Investments. Clients can also build their own portfolio of mutual funds and/or individual securities with American Century or another financial firm to match the asset allocation created by the Service.

Ownership

American Century Investments is a wholly-owned subsidiary of American Century Companies, Inc. ("ACC"). ACC has a multi class capital structure under which certain classes have different voting rights. Accordingly, as of January 31, 2021, ACC's owners were as follows:

Shareholder	Equity Interest	Voting Interest
Stowers Institute for Medical Research*	42%	48%
Nomura Holdings, Inc.	40%	10%
Current Employees and Others	18%	42%

*Includes shares held by Stowers Resource Management Inc.

 Shares are directly owned by Nomura AM Holdings USA, LLC, an indirect subsidiary of Nomura Holdings, Inc.

Stowers Resource Management Inc. ("SRM") is a "supporting organization" (as that term is defined in the Internal Revenue Code), and as such, a public charity. Its primary function as a legal entity is to support the Stowers Institute for Medical Research ("SIMR"). Jim and Virginia Stowers founded SIMR in 1994 as a not-for-profit institute dedicated to benefiting humankind through basic research on genes and proteins that control fundamental processes in living cells to unlock the mysteries of disease (including cancer) and find the keys to their causes, treatment, and prevention. It is one of the largest endowments in the world among private basic biomedical research institutions. Through its ownership interest, SRM is entitled to over forty percent of all dividends paid by ACC.

All active employees of ACC and its subsidiaries also participate in the ownership of the firm.

Since May 19, 2016, Nomura Holdings, Inc. ("Nomura") has held a minority interest in ACC and holds two of eleven seats on ACC's board of directors. From investment management and general business perspectives, however, ACC and Nomura are legally and operationally independent and distinct.

Questionnaires

For the Investment Planner Service, Clients complete a questionnaire about the client's investment and retirement goals, current financial situation, investable assets, contribution rate, retirement time horizon, investment experience and comfort with risk (the "Investment Planner Questionnaire"). Clients can complete the Investment Planner Questionnaire online or with an American Century representative. The Investment Plan is based solely on the information provided by the client in the Investment Planner Questionnaire. Any information provided by clients for purposes of obtaining advice or the Investment Plan, or changes thereto, will not be considered for other accounts or services at any American Century entity. Similarly, any information clients provide to American Century Investments or an affiliate outside of the Service will not be considered when developing an Investment Plan for the client.

For the Rollover Planner Service, Clients complete a questionnaire about the client's current retirement plan and its services, fees, investments and investment performance, along with information about the client's needs and plans with respect to these retirement assets. (the "Rollover Planner Questionnaire"). Clients can complete the Rollover Planner Questionnaire only with an American Century representative. The Rollover Plan is based solely on the information provided by the client in the Rollover Planner Questionnaire. Any information provided by clients for purposes of obtaining advice or the Rollover Plan, or changes thereto, will not be considered for other accounts or services at any American Century entity. Similarly, any information clients provide to American Century Investments or an affiliate outside of the Service will not be considered when developing a Rollover Plan for the client.

Implementation

It is the client's sole responsibility and decision whether to implement an Investment Plan and/or a Rollover Plan, including, without limitation, any decision to fully or partially implement the Plans, including after such Plans have expired. A partial implementation of the Plans, or implementation after the expiration of the Plans or a change in the client's financial situation or circumstances, is inconsistent with the Plans and may result in a different risk profile than the Plans considered. Clients must take action in order to implement the Plans.

American Century Investments does not monitor client portfolios for any reason related to the Service. American Century Investments and its affiliates have no discretion with respect to the implementation of any Plan, including a particular savings or withdrawal strategy. We will not monitor or manage any investments made or accounts opened by the client, whether with American Century Investments or any of its affiliates or elsewhere, in order to implement the Plans, nor will we make any trades in or adjustments to the client's account unless the client directs us to do so. Implementing a Plan may result in selling some or all of a client's existing holdings. It is the client's decision to sell existing holdings. American Century Investments and its affiliates will not advise clients on these transactions.

American Century Investments and its affiliate do not provide any tax advice. Although a client's actions to implement a Plan may raise tax or other legal implications, clients acknowledge that American Century Investments bears no responsibility for their decision-making. Clients are responsible for any tax implications and/or tax obligations arising as a result of the client's implementation of a Plan provided or the client's use of the Service. Clients are strongly encouraged to seek the advice of their accountant or attorney for tax or legal questions related to their implementation of a Plan or other use of this Service.

Assets under management

As of March 26, 2021, American Century Investments managed approximately $1,268,000,000 on a discretionary basis for its clients. As of the same date, American Century Investments managed approximately $2,000 in assets on a non-discretionary basis for its clients.

Item 5 – Fees and Compensation

American Century Investments does not charge an advisory fee for the non-discretionary advice services provided in the Service, which includes the delivery of the Plans and assistance with implementation of the Plans.

All investors in American Century mutual funds indirectly pay investment management fees, underlying fund fees, and other administrative and servicing fees to certain American Century affiliates, regardless of whether they are implementing a Plan or not. Such fees and expenses are disclosed in each American Century mutual fund prospectus and vary by mutual fund.

American Century Investments has an incentive to structure Plans in such a way that results in the maximum fee/benefit to American Century Investments affiliates but conducts prudent portfolio construction processes and ongoing oversight of these portfolios to mitigate this potential conflict of interest. In addition, American Century Investments' affiliates will not receive more in investment management fees as part of a Plan than is disclosed in the funds' prospectuses.

If the client chooses to implement a Plan using American Century mutual funds, American Century Investments and its representatives or its affiliates will be compensated through the management fees or other fees earned in connection with the underlying American Century mutual funds held by the client. If the client implements the Plan using American Century mutual funds, the client will pay the expenses of such mutual funds as disclosed in each fund's prospectus provided to the client during the enrollment process. In addition, if a client continues to be invested in American Century mutual funds, they will be notified of any fee changes in the same manner as all other fund shareholders. When recommending a Plan, American Century will inform the client of the availability of lower cost share classes for which they are eligible within the limited mutual fund offerings of the Plans.

Details of mutual fund expenses, including the applicable investment management fee rate, can be found in each American Century mutual fund's prospectus, copies of which are provided to clients prior to investment. These expenses are not separately itemized or billed to clients; rather, the prospectuses show the cost of investing in each American Century mutual fund and the published returns of mutual funds are shown net of their expenses. All such fees are subject to change. The affiliation between American Century Investments and certain affiliates creates the potential for a conflict between the interests of clients and the interests of American Century Investments and its affiliates. We address this conflict through disclosure in this brochure and by adopting internal policies and procedures that require American Century Investments and its representatives to provide investment advice that is appropriate for advisory clients based upon the information provided by such clients and the characteristics of the advisory service in which the client has enrolled.

Representatives of American Century Investments do not receive commission-based compensation for the sale of the American Century mutual funds.

Item 6 – Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

American Century Investments does not offer or accept performance-based fee arrangements and does not engage in side-by-side management.

American Century Investment Management, Inc., ("ACIM") the advisor for the American Century mutual funds and an affiliate of American Century Investments, manages multiple strategies involving most asset classes and types of securities. This description, therefore, applies to ACIM, which may make investment decisions across strategies and individual accounts that may vary based on specific strategy or client characteristics.

ACIM may charge performance-based fees to "qualified clients" (clients having a net worth greater than $2,000,000 or for whom we manage at least $1,000,000), immediately after entering an agreement for its services. Performance-based fees are based on a portion of the capital gains or capital appreciation of the client's account. ACIM manages accounts that are charged performance-based fees while at the same time managing accounts (perhaps with similar objectives) that are not charged performance-based fees, for example, accounts that are charged another type of fee, such as a flat fee or asset-based fee ("side-by side management"). Performance-based fees and side-by-side management may create conflicts of interest, which ACIM has identified and described in the following paragraph.

Performance-based fees may create an incentive for ACIM to make investments that are riskier or more speculative than would be the case absent a performance fee arrangement. In order to address this potential conflict of interest, the investment oversight committee of ACIM periodically reviews these client accounts to ensure that investments are suitable and that the account is being managed according to the client's investment objectives and risk tolerance. Performance-based fees may also create an incentive for ACIM to overvalue investments that lack a market quotation. In order to address such conflict, ACIM has adopted policies and procedures that require it to "fair value" any investments that do not have a readily ascertainable value. Side-by-side management might provide an incentive for ACIM to favor accounts for which it receives a performance-based fee. For example, ACIM may have an incentive to allocate limited investment opportunities, such as initial public offerings, to clients who are charged performance-based fees over clients who are charged asset-based fees only. To address this conflict of interest, ACIM has instituted policies and procedures that require it to allocate investment opportunities (if they are suitable) fairly, regardless of whether the client is charged performance fees.

Item 7 – Types of Clients

American Century Investments provides the Service to individual investors, households and businesses with a specific investment goal and generally any level of investable assets.

Item 8 – Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies, and Risk of Loss

Methods and Analysis

As a result of using the Investment Planner Service, clients will receive an Investment Plan consisting of a recommended asset allocation and American Century mutual fund or funds to match that allocation. The Investment Plan includes target allocations to various asset classes. The fund recommendations correspond to the target allocations and will consist of a portfolio of American Century funds or a single asset allocation mutual fund. The Investment Planner Service offers multiple model asset allocation portfolios that seek to satisfy a wide variety of client needs, ranging from the most aggressive portfolios (e.g., portfolios that include 100% in equity exposure) to more conservative portfolios (e.g., portfolios that include limited equity exposure) and addressing varying time horizons for clients' financial goals.

Investment Strategies

Investment Plans are designed to create a series of broadly diversified portfolios with distinct risk and return profiles depending on the ratio of equity to fixed income within the portfolio. For each model Plan, the allocation to equity seeks diversification across market capitalizations (e.g., large-, mid-, small-cap), sectors, and geographical regions. The allocation to fixed income also seeks diversification across sectors and regions, such as U.S. investment-grade, high-yield, non-U.S. developed, and emerging market bonds.

Risk of Loss

American Century Investments does not guarantee investment results, or that the objectives of the Investment Plan or the underlying mutual funds will be met. All investment strategies employed by American Century Investments involve risk of loss; clients should be prepared to bear such losses in connection with investments in these strategies.

Below is a summary of the primary risks related to the primary investment strategies and methods of analysis used by American Century Investments. The Investment Planner Service uses American Century mutual funds for its investment strategy and these funds are ultimately affected by impacts to the individual issuers of underlying holdings, such as changes in an issuer's profitability and credit quality, or changes in tax, regulatory, market, or economic developments. Investment in individual securities by the American Century mutual funds (including, without limitation, commodities, derivatives, investment contracts, and bank loans) involves risk of loss of the principal of such investments; however, clients should be aware that not all of the risks listed below will apply to every investment strategy as certain risks may only apply to certain investment strategies or investments in different types of securities. Multiple factors contribute to investment risk for all relevant strategies and additional factors contribute to investment risk for specific strategies. Furthermore, the risks listed below are not intended to be a complete description or enumeration of the risks associated with the methods of analysis and investment strategies used. Risks associated with investment in any of the American Century mutual funds are described in the prospectus for each fund (a copy of which is provided to each client prior to investment of a client's assets in such fund) and the Statement of Additional Information (SAI), which is incorporated by reference into the prospectus. A copy of the SAI is available upon request. A mutual fund's actual investment returns and income will fluctuate and will result from a number of factors, including the actual asset allocation, the investments chosen, the fees and expenses associated with those investments, and future economic and market conditions. A mutual fund's past performance is not a guarantee of future performance and there is no guarantee that a client's account will perform in a particular manner.

- Allocation Risk – The fund's ability to achieve its investment objective depends in part on the managers' skill in determining the funds' asset class allocations and in selecting and weighting the underlying funds. The managers' evaluations and assumptions regarding asset classes and underlying funds may differ from actual market conditions.
- Fund of Funds Risks – The fund's performance and risks reflect the performance and risks of the underlying American Century Investments funds in which it invests. Shareholders of the fund will also indirectly bear their pro rata share of the expenses of such underlying funds. The fund's investment in other American Century Investments funds may create a conflict of interest for the fund's advisor.

- Market Risk – The value of the fund's shares will go up and down based on the performance of the underlying funds in which it invests. The value of the underlying funds' shares will, in turn, fluctuate based on the performance of the securities they own and other factors generally affecting the securities market.
- Small- and Mid-Cap Stock Risks – Stocks of smaller companies may be more volatile than larger-company stocks. Smaller companies may have limited financial resources, product lines and markets, and their securities may trade less frequently and in more limited volumes than the securities of larger companies, which could lead to higher transaction costs. To the extent an underlying fund invests in these companies, it may take on more risk.
- "Growth" and "Value" Style Risks – The underlying funds represent a mix of investment styles, each of which has risks associated with it. Growth stocks can be volatile and may lack dividends that can cushion share prices during market declines. Value stocks may continue to be undervalued by the market for long periods of time.
- Interest Rate Risk – Generally, when interest rates rise, the value of an underlying fund's fixed-income securities will decline. The opposite is true when interest rates decline. Underlying funds with longer weighted average maturities are more sensitive to interest rate changes. A period of rising interest rates may negatively affect the performance of underlying fixed-income funds.
- Credit Risk – The value of an underlying fund's fixed-income securities will be affected adversely by the inability or perceived inability of the issuers of these securities to make interest and principal payments as they become due. Changes in the credit rating of a fixed-income security held by an underlying fund could have a similar effect.
- Foreign Risk – Some of the underlying funds invest in foreign securities, which are generally riskier than U.S. securities. Securities of foreign issuers may be less liquid, more volatile and harder to value than U.S. securities. Fluctuations in currency exchange rates also may affect an underlying fund's share price. Investing in securities of companies located in emerging market countries is generally riskier than investing in securities of companies located in developed foreign countries.

- Principal Loss – At any given time your shares may be worth less than the price you paid for them. In other words, it is possible to lose money by investing in the fund.

Item 11 – Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

Our business is built on trust. In our efforts to ensure that all members of our corporate family always seek to do the right thing for you and for each other, we have adopted a Code of Ethics designed to help ensure that our business is conducted in accordance with the law and with the highest ethical standards. Our Code of Ethics is adopted pursuant to Rules 204A-1 and 204-2 of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940. Our Code of Ethics is intended to reflect principles that govern the conduct of American Century Investments in those situations where we act as an investment advisor, as defined in the Investment Advisers Act. Our Code of Ethics addresses topics such as standards of business conduct, compliance with applicable federal law and personal securities activities of associated persons.

American Century Investments has adopted a Code of Ethics that guides the personal investment activities of our employees. Upon employment and at least annually thereafter, the Code of Ethics requires employees of American Century Investments, as well as employees of other companies within our corporate family, to: (i) acknowledge that they have received, read, and will comply with the Code, (ii) provide account information for reportable mutual fund and brokerage accounts, and (iii) provide duplicate confirmations of transactions in reportable brokerage accounts to our compliance department.

Reportable accounts include accounts held directly by the employee and accounts that are beneficially owned. The Code of Ethics prohibits employees from short term and abusive trading in the American Century Investments mutual funds and requires all of our employees to comply with certain trading restrictions in the American Century Investments mutual funds. Our officers and directors, as well as certain employees of affiliates are required to comply with additional restrictions. These additional restrictions include, but are not limited to, pre-clearance of personal securities transactions in nonexempt securities and quarterly transaction reporting of security and reportable mutual fund transactions. In addition, portfolio managers, traders, officers and directors of ACIM are subject to additional restrictions for trading in private placements and initial public offerings of stock. Portfolio managers and investment analysts for ACIM are subject to black out restrictions when trading securities held in their assigned funds.

Under the Code of Ethics, certain classes of securities have been designated as exempt transactions based upon a determination that these would materially not interfere with the best interest of our clients. Because the Code of Ethics in some circumstances would permit employees to invest in the same securities as clients, there is a possibility that employees might benefit from investment activity in a client's account. Due to this conflict of interest between us and our clients, our compliance department continually monitors employee trading, as required by the Code of Ethics, to ensure compliance with the Code.

The Code of Ethics also includes provisions regarding the treatment of confidential information of our clients. Certain employees are also required to disclose potential conflicts of interest due to their personal relationships.

Failure to comply with the Code of Ethics constitutes a violation of the policy and results in sanctions, including, without limitation, formal warning with manager notification, required attendance of a Code of Ethics training session, suspension of trading privileges, disgorgement of profits, and/or suspension or termination of employment.

American Century Investments will provide a copy of the Code of Ethics to any client or prospective client upon request.

As described above, we will generally only recommend, through the Investment Plan, investments in the American Century mutual funds. We have a conflict of interest to choose the American Century Investments funds over other mutual funds, ETFs or other investments not affiliated with us. Clients should be aware of this conflict and limitation before investing with us.

Item 12 – Brokerage Practices

American Century Investments does not select or recommend broker-dealers for client transactions, and we do not determine the reasonableness of broker-dealer compensation for client transactions. If a client chooses to implement an Investment Plan with American Century mutual funds with such funds' transfer agent, American Century Services, LLC, note that American Century Investments and such custodian may share personnel, premises and may have common supervision. Clients should carefully review all statements and other communications received from the American Century mutual funds' transfer agent and/or other service providers, and the client's external broker (if any).

American Century Investments does not perform any client securities transactions and, therefore, does not receive research or other products or services from any broker-dealers or research providers.

Broker-dealers provide a wide range of research services to American Century Investment Management, Inc., the advisor to the American Century mutual funds, ("ACIM") in its capacity as a discretionary adviser to such funds. Information regarding research benefits provided to ACIM is located in ACIM's Form ADV Part 2A.

Item 13 – Review of Accounts

The Service is a point-in-time service, and American Century Investments does not provide initial or ongoing monitoring or any review of client accounts through the Service. If the client chooses to implement the Investment Plan or Rollover Plan, it is the client's responsibility to monitor the investment to determine if it continues to be appropriate for them. American Century Investments bears no responsibility to monitor the investment or provide other advisory services.

Item 14 – Client Referrals and Other Compensation

The Services are generally offered only through investment advisory representatives associated with American Century Investments Private Client Group. Pursuant to an agreement between American Century Investments and ACIS, ACIS can compensate its employees for new assets into the American Century complex, including investments made pursuant to an Investment Plan. Any such payments to ACIS employees shall not increase or create any fee paid by the Client. Neither we nor any of our related persons compensate any related person who is not a supervised person for client referrals.

American Century Investments may also compensate unrelated third parties for client referrals in accordance with Rule 206(4)-3 of the Investment Advisers Act. If the referred person invests in an American Century mutual fund, we will typically compensate the third party with a one-time cash payment or a limited-term cash payment based on a percentage of assets invested, but we may include cash payments determined in other ways. We may also compensate third parties solely for driving prospective clients to us from other websites or via telephone transfers. Should we engage in these referral or solicitation arrangements, we will disclose this practice in writing to such clients. Clients are not charged a fee, nor do they incur any additional or different costs for being referred to us by a third party or solicitor.

We may also have other periodic promotional events to clients or prospects that may result in offering various items or prizes, including electronic products.

Item 15 – Custody

American Century Investments does not act as a custodian for client assets and does not have physical custody of client funds or securities at any time.

Item 16 – Investment Discretion

With respect to the Service, American Century Investments is a non-discretionary adviser and does not manage any client assets. It is entirely the client's decision whether and where to execute an Investment Plan or Rollover Plan.

Item 17 – Voting Client Securities

American Century Investments does not vote proxies on behalf of clients or advise clients regarding voting their proxies for any securities held in a client's account, even if the client has chosen to invest according to an Investment Plan. Clients are expected to vote their proxies and will receive proxies directly from the custodian or transfer agent.

Item 18 – Financial Information

Because we have no financial condition that impairs our ability to meet contractual commitments to you and we have not been the subject of a bankruptcy proceeding, we have no required financial disclosures.
